

Maintaining the Title II status of large internet providers is imperative in maintaining REAL net neutrality. Risking the security of net neutrality also risks equal access and opportunities to citizens across the country. Reclassifying under Title I would also make no significant positive economic impact.